The Brundall Year 5 Mocktail Party

The Year 5 Christmas party on the 18th December 2007 got cancelled because the heating broke down. Although it was meant to be a Christmas party we had it on the 9th January instead as a New Year party. The name of the party was a 'Mocktail Party' because you have mocktails (they are like cocktails but are non-alcoholic and instead of wines you have pure fruit juice and fizzy water. )

We played games like Sock Wars where you have to get each other's socks off without taking your bottom off of the ground. When we had finished the game, the boys had 8 points and the girls had 4 points!

Then, we played musical bumps and after that we had to play a game where you try to roll a 6 on the dice. If you do, you have to put fancy dress clothes on and when you've done that you get to try to cut the chocolate while everyone is still rolling the dice. If someone else does, you have to stop.

After that we had our mocktails and crisps and biscuits. As soon as we had done that we had a game of Head it Catch it, where if the teacher calls out head it you have to catch it and the other way round.

Then, we had a game of pass the parcel and after that we got our goody bags. That was the end of the party.

I think that the party was the best in the world.
