Dear members of Brundall School, and the rest of the country,

I am writing to tell you that I had a party at school for the new year. I know you might think it's a bit strange that we had a new years party. It is because our boilers broke down before Christmas.

What we did was, we played sock wars (I hope people's socks weren't smelly!) After that we played musical bumps 5 people won. After that we played the chocolate game. I did not win.

Then we had non alcoholic mocktails. Last of all we got a goody bag with sweets and toys in.

Yours Sincerely

Milly Folkard
